Travel Aiding Soon-to-Be-Blind Boy In Storing Up a Lifetime of Visual Memories; Public Is Raising Funds

By VALERIE EVENDEN
Press-Record Staff Writer

The visual impressions of a lifetime are being accumulated, compressed and committed to memory by a Granite City boy, whose world of sight soon will be veiled in darkness.

There is little hope that the future of John Allen Young will be anything but encased in a black, sightless void. For the 8-year-old has retinitis pigmentosa, an hereditary eye disease for which no cure is known and which always leads to total blindness.

Written evidence from leading ophthalmologists throughout the United States all emphasize the ultimate, heart-breaking end. John, a bright youngster who will enter the fourth grade at the Niedringhaus School this September, is the son of Granite City Patrolman and Mrs. Albert Young. The couple has another child, Tracy, six years old, soon to be a first grade pupil at the same elementary school as her brother.

The nightmare began three years ago for the police officer's family when John was five and it became apparent he could not see clearly when dusk descended.

"Other children still would be playing outdoors, but John could not see," his father said. "Initially, it was believed he was afflicted with 'night blindness,' but soon he was wearing glasses and gradually, during 1971, the condition became more pronounced."

In January, the parents took him back to Dr. Donald C. Schmellmann, a Granite City ophthalmologist, who diagnosed the child's ailment as retinitis pigmentosa.

He referred the boy to specialists at McMillan Hospital in St. Louis, where exhaustive tests confirmed the local physician's diagnosis.

Consult Specialists Since the disease was pinpointed, the Youngs has corresponded with a widely-known physician-researcher in the field of retinitis pigmentosa and similar eye disorders at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center and New York University Medical Center, both located in New York.

All gave the family the same precise answer—"although research in this area is being carried out, no definite treatment or cure is known."

"As soon as we found out about John's condition, both Janet and I offered to donate our eyes to him for a transplant operation," Patrolman Young said. "But they told us it wouldn't be of any use."

"They are able to transplant only the cornea of the eye, not the retina, which they have little knowledge about," he explained.

Transmits Vision The retina is the sensory membrane of the eye that receives the image formed by the lens and transmits the picture by the optic nerve to the brain. Despite the ophthalmologist's belief that the disease is hereditary, no evidence is available that anyone in either Albert's or Janet's families was afflicted with the same ailment. "No one in either family has been blind," Young said.

On Aug. 26, John will return to McMillan Hospital, where specialists will photograph his eyes with a special machine and compare the results with pictures made in January.

Comparison between the January and August photographs may provide a clue to the deterioration rate, Young said, noting that even this detailed procedure cannot answer the question: "When will it happen?"

"Once deterioration starts, the doctors say, blindness could occur at any time, Young learned. "They can't tell us how long before John loses his sight completely."

Once the Youngs partially accepted the fact of the pending blindness, they decided to do whatever they could to brighten the life of their son—to give him as many happy and colorful memories as possible, memories that he will vividly recall even though he can no longer see them himself.

Two major obstacles stood in the way of their decision—money and time—plus the need for the father to continue at his job as a policeman.

"We talked about selling the house so we can take him to different places, but after discussing it thoroughly, Janet and I decided this wouldn't solve anything, as we still need a place to live," Young said.

John wanted to see Disney World in Florida, but we didn't have enough money to go there. The next place he mentioned was Niagara Falls.

Two weeks ago, the Youngs and Janet's parents packed up and took a five-day hurried trip to the Falls, splitting the cost of gasoline and briefly crossing the Canadian border to give John a glimpse of another country.

"He found out that the Falls was one of the 'Seven Wonders of the World' and it really captured his imagination. It is all he has been talking about," his father said.

"If you could have just seen him watching the falls, so delighted with them, it would have touched your heart," Young commented later to friends. "He was a very happy boy."

A trip to Disney World in Florida is to be financed by the Madison County Deputy Sheriffs Association.

Also to help the boy see historic and scenic sights, the Madison Police Department and Explorer Post 104 will sponsor a benefit barbecue Aug. 5 and 6.

The response appeared good to a car wash project, spearheaded by Granite City Fire Department personnel, this weekend, as evidenced by the number of autos seen at the main fire station Saturday.

New York, Yellowstone The youngster has seen a picture of a car being driven through a tunnel in a huge redwood tree in California and has asked his parents to take him to see this "marvelous thing" at Yosemite National Park.

He also has indicated he would like to see the Liberty in New York and Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming.

If possible, the Youngs plan to make his wishes a reality. While in New York, they will take him to visit the research center doctor who has expressed a wish to see him.

John's fondest dream, however, will be realized on Aug. 4, when the County Deputy Sheriffs provide the family with an all-expense paid trip to the newly opened Disney World in Florida.

Deputy Sheriff John Cooper said Friday that an auto will be made available to them at Orlando for their use during the early August weekend.

John has been told of his "pending" blindness, his father said.

"We have talked to him about it and he knows he is going blind, but he doesn't comprehend what it will be like. How could he?" Young exclaimed.

The Young family lives on Wilson Park Drive, but resided on Washington Avenue for several years until moving not long ago. The boy attends Sunday school at Calvary Baptist Church.

Policeman Six Years The Granite City patrolman has been on the police force for six years.

"He is a former humane officer for the city and is remembered kindly by those whose pets caused problems by slipping off their leashes or digging their way out of fenced areas."

The situation obviously is a difficult one to face—not only for the boy, but for his parents.

who must watch the child lose portions of his sight as time progresses.

But a degree of reassurance is provided by the knowledge of the generosity of Quad-Cityans, and their realization that this will help him to store happy memories with which to face the days of darkness ahead.

Cyclist Injured Fatally

Jasper Chastain, 38, of 41 Moorland Drive, Mitchell, was fatally injured when his auto was involved in an accident with another car and a tractor-trailer truck at 3:20 p.m. Friday on Route 3 at the A. O. Smith Corp. plant entrance.

Mr. Chastain was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital in an unconscious condition and was transferred to Firmus Desloge Hospital, St. Louis, where he died at 11:15 p.m.

The driver of the truck, Dewey L. Donahue, 27, of St. Jacob, complained of pains to the shoulders and was released following x-rays. The driver of the auto, Vernon E. Thompson, Belleville, escaped injury. Donahue was charged with a right-of-way violation.

An inquest is pending. Mr. Chastain was born in Venice and was a lifelong resident of Granite City. He was employed 18 years as a machinist at the plant presently operated by Corn Sweeteners, Inc., formerly the Marshall Division of Miles Laboratories and Union Star and Refining Co.

He was a member of First Baptist Church in Madison. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Vivian Chastain, a son, Brian K. Chastain, and three daughters, Misses Linda M., Kim D. and Stacy A. Chastain, all at home; three brothers, Edward Chastain of Granite City, Jim Chastain of Madison and Art Chastain of Red Bud; and three sisters, Mrs. Helen Wiley, Mrs. Marian McCarthy and Mrs. Elsie Woods, all of Granite City.

Funeral arrangements are being planned in today's obituary column.

Construction on a major expansion and remodeling of Kroger Food Store in Nameoki Village Shopping Center began Friday to convert the present store into what company officials describe as a 31,340-square-foot "superstore."

The $179,000 expansion is being financed by part of $2 million Kroger will spend this year in building 42 new stores and remodeling and enlarging 40 others.

L. Wolf Co. is contractor for the project here and Henry Luaders of the Luaders Agency is developer. A construction permit was issued by Granite City Friday. Construction here is expected to be completed by Jan. 1.

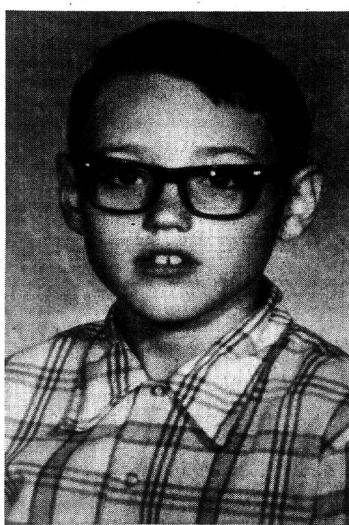

Charles W. White, St. Louis Division vice-president for Kroger, explained that the project will "create an entirely new store which uses the shell of the old store as a base."

60% Expansion Floor space will be expanded about 60% from the present 19,500 square feet, he said. Special-service departments will be emphasized in the new and remodeled superstore.

White said, noting that they will look almost as though they are individual shops within the store. The delicatessen, for example, will be topped with a wood-shingle roof, accented with gold and bittersweet-colored lighted panels. The Village Bakery, featuring custom-quality baked goods, will have an English Tudor effect with beams and cross-hatched windows.

"The same imaginative efforts will be applied to every section of the store," White explained, pointing out that the new decor is designed to not only make shopping more pleasant, but also to make it easier.

News Notes

Last of Democratic Delegates Selected

The eyes of the nation are on the national Democratic convention opening tonight in Miami Beach, Fla., and this Congressional district will have full representation, including a number of new faces.

Unsuccessful McGovern delegate candidates late last week chose five delegates—Mrs. Sue Kolker, East St. Louis, Mrs. Carmen Deist Kerr, Bethalto, and Mrs. Lulu Mae Williams, East St. Louis, who had run 11th, 12th and 22nd for seven delegate positions; Mrs. Jeanne G. Mudge, Edwardsville, whose husband was an unsuccessful candidate; and Mrs. Suzanne Funk Edwards, whose husband filed the challenge.

Unsuccessful Muskie candidates chose two women delegates—Mrs. Lillian Singer, Pontoon Beach, who ran unsuccessfully, and Mrs. Brenda Bush, East St. Louis, whose husband, Gordon Bush, was a defeated candidate on the March ballot.

These seven and seven victorious uncommitted delegate candidates, including Charles Hester of Granite City, each will cast a half-vote in their party's Presidential nominating convention.

The Illinois Supreme Court Friday refused to take a test case on the new $30 million Illinois parochial school aid law which said the case must go to a lower court.

Although a St. Louis newspaper again is calling "Granite City air dirtiest in Illinois," a state study of 1970 and 1971 suspended particulates omits many communities and shows that some areas have similar levels of micrograms per cubic meter. Chicago Heights 1970-71 readings of 265-175 compare with 194-179 and 134-146 at two Granite City locations. Other Granite City samplings in 1971 included 127, 123, 174 and 174.

A "green light" has been given the four-township sanitary sewer program by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, which said Friday that the preliminary engineer report complies with the agency's current design criteria. The report was approved, subject to filing of related material at the time of the permit application.

Edmund J. Kucharski, assistant secretary of state and Republican candidate for secretary of state in the November election, will make a brief campaign visit to Granite City Tuesday. Kucharski will meet at 1 p.m. at Charlie's Restaurant with labor representatives and a delegation of Quad-City area Republican leaders.

Gov. Ogilvie on Thursday promised increased road improvement funds for Madison County due to the two-year highway fund freeze. He told Attorney J. F. Schlafly of Alton, "This request can be solved administratively, without specific legislation."

Site preparation has begun for three new buildings on Route 50 to provide space supplementing the French Village headquarters of the Illinois Division of Highways. Robert Kronst, district engineer, said Thursday.

Pin Oak Supervisor Virgil Bardsley, 59, a Republican, unsuccessful in his bid for a seat on the reduced-size Madison County Board, was chosen by circuit judges Thursday for the three-member Board of Review, replacing Howard Sparks (D) and restoring the 2-1 party division. Democrats on the property assessment review panel are County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer of Granite City and Donald McLean of Edwardsville.

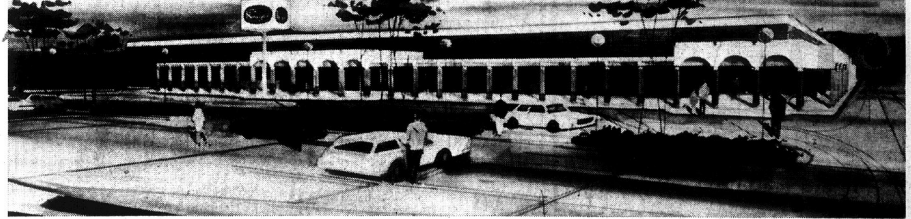

President Nixon on Friday ordered a crackdown on airline hijackings, with 100% inspection in some form for all passengers. All must show two pieces of identification, and carry-on luggage is to be searched.

Dr. James Anderson, curator of the Cahokia Mounds State Park museum, will address a luncheon Thursday of the Friends of the Madison County Historical Museum, at the county museum in Edwardsville. An 11 a.m. business session will precede the luncheon.

The Mississippi River Festival opened during the weekend at SIU-SW and will continue at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow with the vocal artistry of Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge.

Joseph N. Berry, Alton, was elected last week as the new chairman of the Madison County Board of School Trustees, replacing Karl Monro, Carlinsville, who continues on the board. Gerald Walton, Hartford, was named to replace Willard Flagg, who was honored on his retirement after 20 years on the board. Members include Homer Huber, Granite City businessman.

A NEW LOOK for the Kroger store in Nameoki Village Shopping Center is shown in this architect's drawing. Remodeling and enlarging work at the store began Friday and should be completed by Jan. 1. L. Daley-Ogilvie Legislative Effectiveness Could Pose Problem for Walker Campaign

By KEN WATSON
Capitol News Service

Springfield—The latest Daley-Ogilvie legislative triumph has raised a new round of questioning at the Statehouse.

How hard will Mayor Richard J. Daley's still potent Chicago organization work for Democratic governor nominee Daniel Walker in the November election?

There are some Capitol cynics who are predicting that Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will make a surprising showing in Chicago and that he will come out of the metropolis in far better shape than does the ordinary Republican candidate.

There have been ample signs since the primary that Daley and his people have failed to warm appreciably to Walker, and the latter's aloofness has done little to improve the relationship.

Personalities aside, there are some good hard reasons why Daley would not exactly cheer a Walker move into the Statehouse.

In his 17 years as mayor, Daley has fared exceedingly well in that unique Illinois arrangement that matches Chicago Democratic mayors with Republican governors.

Although they consistently flailed each other politically, Daley and former GOP Gov. Stratton enjoyed a mutually productive legislative arrangement.

Oddly enough, the eight years of Democratic Gov. Otto Kerner were far from easy ones for Daley, although Kerner publicly acknowledged the mayor as the party's political leader in Illinois.

The bargaining leverage wasn't there.

Democratic legislators with their own man in the governor's office were less eager to follow the mayor's bidding in the hard, tough legislative bargaining that seems to be the most dependable way to achieve enactment of major programs in this state.

With Republican governors, Daley has been able to bargain on an equal, no-nonsense, effective basis. Both men consistently get what they want.

Legislating at the summit has reached a new high of productivity in the Daley-Ogilvie relationship.

Daley, in fact, realized an immense bonus when he supplied the votes that enabled Ogilvie to pass the first Illinois income tax. The mayor not only received a revenue windfall from which Chicago continues to benefit, but he escaped the political backlash, which fell entirely on Ogilvie.

The governor, however, appears to have fared substantially better in this year's deal. He won enactment of his $561 million capital improvements program, which will enable him to strengthen his record as "a governor who gets things done and keeps the state moving."

The mayor who is not expected to run again when his current term expires in 1975, receives more state help in dealing with those chronic crises involving Chicago's schools and the mass transit system.

There is a prevailing feeling beneath the Statehouse dome that if Walker is the next governor, the cozy Chicago-Springfield relationship will be a thing of the past.

That familiar Republican-Democratic legislative tetter-tetter will be missing. All the weight will be at one end, so to speak, and Republicans could hardly expect to help balance things out.

Walker remains the maverick candidate who bases his campaign on a presumed "anti-establishment" title.

The tone of his campaign is such that he would as governor find it difficult to prepare programs that would require increased state spending and taxes.

Yet, almost all respected students of state government agree that such a course is unavoidable over the next four years.

Probably most important in the Chicago mayor's view, Walker as governor would not be likely to rely on Daley for advice about state or Chicago matters.

Children of Poor in State Failing to Get Maximum Benefit of Available Federal Aid

By LESTER BELL
Copley News Service
Washington — The children of the poor, who need all the education they can get if they are to function in an increasingly challenging society, are not getting the maximum benefit of the federal aid program in Illinois.

The General Accounting Office, reporting this to Congress, assigns the blame impartially among the U. S. Office of Education, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Illinois state educational agencies and local educational agencies.

The 67-page report, one of the "Congressional Watchdog" agency's longer products, reviews the fiscal 1970-71 programs in Chicago, Rockford and Harrisburg as representative of large, medium and small cities.

Congress under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 authorized federal aid, about $1 billion annually nationwide, for programs designed to meet the special needs of poor children, euphemistically called "The Educationally deprived children in areas having high concentrations of children of low-income families."

Under the fiscal 1970 Title I program, Illinois spent $46,935,

000 in federal funds on 361,638 participating children. Comparable figures for the three cities reviewed were: Chicago, $26,607,000 for 136,874 children; Rockford, $544,000 for 2,919 children; and Harrisburg, $102,000 for 295 children.

Although GAO studied only the three cities, the title of its report implies that the weaknesses are statewide: "The federal program of aid to educationally deprived children in Illinois can be strengthened."

"This report," GAO says in alerting Congress to matters for consideration, "calls attention to areas of operation and administration of the Title I program in Illinois that can be strengthened at the federal, state and local levels to help ensure that the program is having the maximum impact on the educationally deprived children."

GAO in general traces weaknesses to vague and confusing federal guidelines, failure of the local agencies to isolate and deal with the problems effectively, and ineffectual monitoring of children of low-income families.

It also takes a look at how federal funds are being accounted for.

"During the period March 1967 through 1971, the HEW audit agency issued 56 reports on the Title I program in 42 states."

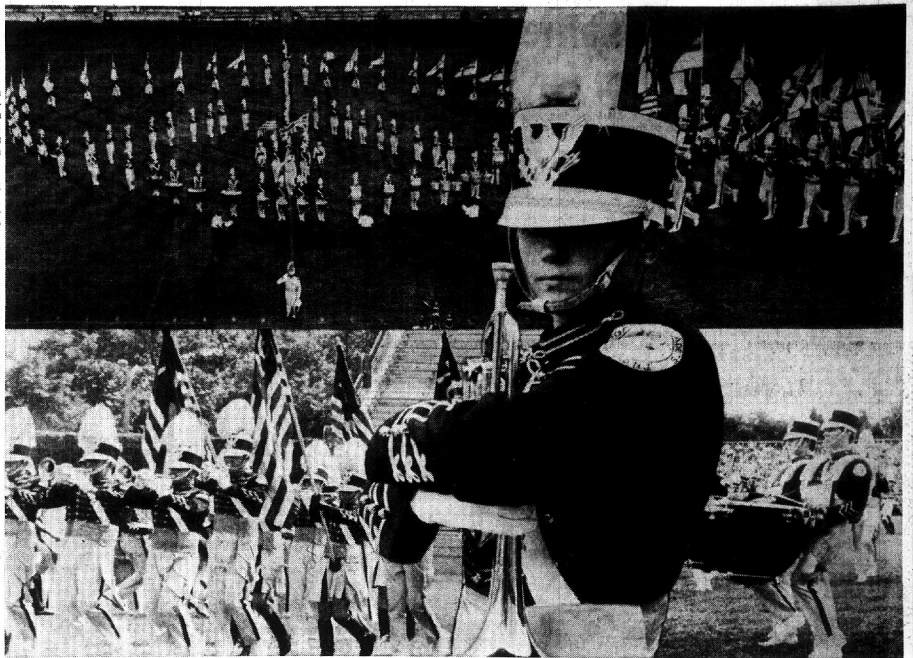

"As of June 30, 1971, findings involving about $37 million in Title I funds in 24 of the states, including $9.4 million in Illinois, had not been resolved by OE (the U. S. Office of Education). Many of the findings had remained unresolved from two to four years."

Specifically, GAO said, Title I can and should be improved at the local levels by:

1. Concentrating programs on a limited number of eligible attendance areas and providing a variety of services to participating children.
2. Establishing procedures for selecting the most educationally deprived children to participate in project activities.
3. Extending services to eligible non-public-school children.
4. Involving parents of Title I children and representatives of community organizations.

GAO said all agencies involved—federal, state and local—acknowledge deficiencies and have promised to take corrective action.

Rules of Road Booklet Updated by State

Several new features of the revised Rules of the Road booklet will make it a more effective tool for motorists preparing to take the driver's license examination, Secretary of State John W. Lewis announced.

Distribution of the booklet is expected to begin the latter part of this month.

The state's program requiring all drivers to be examined at least once every nine years has emphasized the need. Secretary Lewis said, to provide applicants with the information required to pass the examination, and to present it in readable and understandable form.

In the text, the use of technical and legal terms has been avoided wherever possible for better clarity and understanding, and a new type face and a more open makeup style have been adopted for easier reading.

Also, the material is arranged in a logical order matching the procedures followed in giving the examination, so that the applicant will be following an already familiar sequence when taking the examination, the secretary said.

Mercer, St. Mary's Lose, Remain Tied for Second

The battle between St. Mary's Boosters and Mercer's for second place in the Blue Division of the Inter-City Baseball League is still on as both teams lost Sunday. Their records are each 4-6.

Mercer lost to Glen Carbon (7-4) at Wilson Park and St. Mary's returned from Highland-Pierson (5-5) with a 10-8 deficit.

Jack Scarborough blasted a four-bagger in the bottom of the sixth for the Mercer runs. Mercer was held to five hits, committing five errors. Glen Carbon tagged six hits and made four errors.

Jeff Boyles hurled for Mercer. He was relieved in the sixth by James Muehlbauer, who in turn was relieved in the eighth by Pat Harris.

A large homecoming crowd of Highland-Pierson fans went wild in the fourth when their catcher Bill Smith belted a four-bagger with two on to turn the tide putting St. Mary's behind 9-4.

The Boosters tried a comeback in the top of the fifth as they scored three runs, adding their final run in the sixth. Highland-Pierson scored once in the seventh.

The Boosters totaled eight hits and committed three errors. The winners made 10 hits and four errors.

Don Bunk (2-2) went all the way for Madison.

St. Mary's regular catcher and number two hitter Al Bragan was out of action due to a shoulder injury that, according to Jim Greer, the Booster manager, will force Bragan into limited action for some time.

Work schedules will force St. Mary's regulars John Pankus, Larry Gerzules and John Rest-off to play only every other week.

The big bats for St. Mary's Sunday were first baseman Jim Cramer, who garnered four-for-five, and center fielder Frank Papa.

St. Mary's will play a rescheduled game in Madison beginning at 1 p.m. on Saturday against Vans of East Alton and then take a day off on Sunday.

Mercer will travel for their 10th annual exhibition game with the inmates of Menard State Prison Saturday, returning for a Sunday game at Troy beginning at 2 p.m.

Troy lost its first game of the season to Molitor Sunday 3-2. Molitor is now 5-6 and Troy the league leader is 10-1.

Vans 5-5 of East Alton beat Piassa (5-5) 9-6.

Spalding increased the engine in his sprinter from the 314 cubic inch block with which he won the last two weeks to a giant 364 cubic inch engine, injected with alcohol. His late model 427 Chevrolet engine with aluminum heads which he has used all season, was retained for the race.

To help insure his victory, Spalding increased the engine in his sprinter from the 314 cubic inch block with which he won the last two weeks to a giant 364 cubic inch engine, injected with alcohol. His late model 427 Chevrolet engine with aluminum heads which he has used all season, was retained for the race.

In the sprinter feature, Spalding had to fend off rugged competition from Tom Corbin of Carrollton, Mo., and Bill Utz of Sedalia, Mo., for the victory.

The Pontoon Beach driver started on the outside of the front row beside Corbin and managed to jump into the lead in the first turn. Corbin remained within passing distance the entire 20 laps, but Spalding never gave up the lead.

Corbin finished second by less than a car length, trailed by Utz, Dean Shirley of Lincoln and Gary Scott of Holt Summit, Mo.

Spalding easily won the late model feature, his seventh victory in 10 late model features this year. Stanton on the pole he jumped into the lead in front of Bill Myers of Rosewood Heights and Ken Lowe of St. Louis.

By the checkered flag, the leader had increased the space between his Camaro and Meyers' second place Mustang to nearly one-quarter of a lap. Lowe, who had not driven a race car in more than a year, finished third, and Bobby Stanton of Alton was fourth.

Spalding was the fastest late model qualifier with a half-mile lap in 27.37 seconds, defeating Myers with a 27.50 seconds lap. Stanton was third in time-trials, 28.58 seconds. Utz and Scott were third and fourth.

In the sprint car trophy dash for the fastest qualifiers, Utz edged out Corbin and Scott for the victory. David Dwyer won the first heat, trailed by Utz, Corbin and Shirley.

Flea Atkins of Florissant, Mo., won the second sprint car heat over George Ruzic of Springfield and Ollie Runyon of Decatur. Ronnie Taylor of St.

Stanton won the third heat, trailed by Myers, Don Carter of Hillsboro and Cox.

Cycle Races to Return Tuesday

Charlie Chapple of Flint, Mich., will defend his victories of two weeks ago against 50 other motorcycle riders as the weekly cycle races continue tomorrow evening at the Tri-City Speedway.

Racing was cancelled last week for the Independence Day holiday. Chapple swept most of the events June 27, including the feature and qualifications. Among those expected to challenge him tomorrow will be Neil Keen of St. Louis, track champion in 1965, '70 and '71.

Others entered include Charles Seale of Lantana, Fla., and Robert E. Lee of Fort Worth, Tex., both feature winners these seasons.

Spalding Again Wins Sprint And Stock Features at Track

The winning streak of Wib Spalding of Pontoon Beach continued Friday night as he won both the super-sprint and late model stock car feature races for the third consecutive week.

"All I can say is I just hope we can come back next week and do it again," Spalding commented after the record breaking performance.

Spalding credited the victories mainly to outstanding race cars and his mechanics, Tom Mur-ray, 2456 Benton St., his sprint car mechanic since 1961, and Sandy Anderson and Mel Campbell of St. Louis, his late model mechanics.

To help insure his victory, Spalding increased the engine in his sprinter from the 314 cubic inch block with which he won the last two weeks to a giant 364 cubic inch engine, injected with alcohol. His late model 427 Chevrolet engine with aluminum heads which he has used all season, was retained for the race.

Book Review

Tallulah: Mixture of Beauty, Temper, Charm

MISS TALLULAH BANKHEAD; by Lee Israel; G.P. Putnam's Sons; 384 pages; $7.95.

Reviewed By
HAROLD MCCONNELL
Copley News Service

Tempestuous Tallulah. A woman of many moods. Of strong will. Of hot temper and sharp opinions. Of magnetic, commanding personality, on stage and off.

A woman of beauty, warmth and compassion, of openness, waywardness, self-indulgence, a devil-may-care bent.

By sheer force of personality Tallulah Brockman Bankhead made an extraordinary impact on the entertainment world. She was not a great actress but she sought and won public acclaim for many years, both in the United States and Britain.

And, as one critic said, she was a "surprisingly good" actress once in a while.

Miss Israel has done a first-rate job in capturing the many facets of Tallulah's life and personality in this fascinating biography. She interviewed scores of Tallulah's friends and acquaintances, and her book contains hundreds of Tallulah stories.

If one did not know Tallulah, he feels, after reading this book, that he has met a woman of brazen charm and inimitable style, an unforgettable character, one with lovable qualities despite her caustic tongue and sometimes bizarre behavior.

She died in 1968 at the age of 66.

Tallulah and her sister Eugenia, a year older, were the daughters of William Bankhead, who later became speaker of the House, and granddaughters of Sen. John Hollis Bankhead of Alabama. Their Uncle John was also a senator. Another uncle, Henry, was a career diplomat.

Tallulah was named after her Daddy Will's mother, a formidable matriarch, who was "precious mamma" to Tallulah.

Tallulah's mother died of blood poisoning following Tallulah's birth in Huntsville, Ala. The girls were taken to Fayetteville to live with their grandparents, who moved later to Jasper.

Tallulah's handsome, blue-eyed daddy was the love of Tallulah's life. Will loved the heroic theater but sold for the law.

It was part of the game of "pleasing daddy" when she married Barrymorean leading man John Emery in 1927. Will became speaker of the House in 1938. "Marriage was the right thing for Will Bankhead's daughter at this particular time," Miss Israel writes.

The marriage ended in divorce four years later, and Emery commented on that phase of his life: "It was like the rise, decline and fall of the Roman Empire."

Tallulah made her debut in the entertainment world at the age of 15 by winning a Picture-Play magazine contest. She was employed three weeks at a motion picture studio in Brooklyn.

Her first words on the New York stage were spoken in Rachel Crothers' "39 East." Her raw energy and beauty caught attention but her career as an actress personally didn't move ahead fast enough for her in New York.

She decided to go to England. There her good friend, Napier (Naps) Alington — the third Alington baron, helped her meet English society and Bright Young Things. She impressed the English with her "wayward beauty and loquacious cleverness."

Her performance in "The Dancers" — enhanced by her radiant hair and husky voice with its southern tones — captivated the British. She was in the right place at the right time. The cockney girls idolized her, cheering her from the gallery with frenetic zeal. "Tallulah! Hallelujah!" was one of their chants.

"By 1925 Tallulah had become the quintessential Bright Young Thing . . . all gossip of London had to include at least one of Tallulah's most recent outrages against the conventions," Miss Israel writes.

She returned to the United States in 1931 after accepting a lucrative offer from Paramount Pictures. But she parted company with the film industry after two years.

Her greatest performance was "The Little Foxes," a play about the rise of the mercantile class in the South, in which she played land grabber Regina Giddens.

Brooks Atkinson said her acting in that play was "brilliant . . . according to any standards." After 408 performances she took the show on the road.

Farrells to Mark 25th Anniversary

A reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Farrell on their 25th wedding anniversary is planned Sunday, starting at 2 p.m., at the couple's home, 2615 Iowa St.

Hosts for the event will be their sons and daughters-in-law, Michael and Cheryl Farrell and Danny and Marsha Farrell. The honored guests also have two granddaughters, Michael Lee Farrell II and Tina Lynn Farrell.

Mrs. Farrell is the former Dorothy Bennett. The couple was married on July 12, 1947 at the Church of Christ in Pontoon Beach by the late Rev. Willard Jones.

They have lived in Granite City 15 years, having moved here from Edwardsville, Mo. Farrell is employed at Granite City Steel Co.

Friends of the couple are invited to attend the open house reception.

Sherrie Born Is Shower Honoree

Miss Sherrie Born was guest of honor at a luncheon and bridal shower in the home of Miss Hazel Towery, 1705 Spring Ave., on Saturday.

Guests were seated at tables decorated with roses and other appointments following the bride-to-be theme.

After lunch, Miss Pam Graklanoff and Miss Pat Johnson, who will be members of the wedding party, assisted Miss Born in opening gifts. Miss Graklanoff won a prize given by the hostess for advice to the bride.

Attending in addition to those named were: Mrs. Werner E. Born, mother of the bride; and madames Milton Cox, Jewell Everett, Walter Harris, Russell G. Johnson, Roy Lynn and Robert Peterson.

The honoree will be married to Lawrence T. Madden on Saturday, Aug. 5 at Third Baptist Church.

A barbecue marking the occasion was hosted later in the day at the home of the infant's paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Rosenberg, 2264 Cleveland Blvd.

In addition to the hosts, the honoree and her parents, also present were the child's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kukula, and Miss Phyllis Rosenberg, David Rosenberg, Carl and Jim Kukula, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Aleman and son, John, Mr. and Mrs. David Cruise, Bill Herman, Wanda Hall, Patrick Pennell and Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Feeherty of St. Louis.

A FAMILY REUNION HELD AT BUCKLES HOME

Sixty-five persons, many of them from out of the area, attended a reunion of the Julia Buckles family last week at the Buckles home, 212 Watson St., Eagle Park Acres. A luncheon was served at noon. Out-of-town visitors attending the reunion came from Detroit, Tennessee, Mississippi, Chicago and Ohio.

The Scherm Bulletin

We ran a Steak Sale last week and the results were sensational. We ran out of almost every kind of steak that we had. Now, here is some inside information. The Round Steak item was a very special price; but, all the other steak prices were the regular everyday prices. Judging from the results, we better let you know about these regular everyday low prices more often.

Andy Timko, our produce manager, is back from his vacation. Betty Papp is still on vacation. John Meinke, our meat manager, will probably be basking in the sun at his favorite vacation spot at Branson, Mo.

Someone requested rice flour recently. After much trouble we finally located it, but our "buddy" hasn't been in; so, back it goes. That's the way it goes, you win a few and lose a few. Anyway, we tried; that's what counts.

Frank Aldridge, one of our grocery department clerks, is leaving for California. Last Friday was his last day. Leo will be in Chicago this week finishing up the Christmas Buying that he started in January.

With the cooler weather we noticed our customers' appetites improved. It was a good week, especially considering that we were closed one day.

There was a time when even saying "yes" to your beloved's proposal was complicated by ritual and custom and still is to a degree in Europe because the young man had to call on his future father-in-law and formally ask for his daughter's hand in marriage. But even today your saying "yes" immediately starts a chain of events which are "proper by custom." First, the two of you together tell your mother and father, and then immediately tell his mother, and then his father, and then his friends.

The society editors of your local papers will want the formal announcement for publication, and if your young man lives in another city, you will send a duplicate announcement to the society editors of his hometown papers. The announcement is always made by your own mother and father, but if this is not possible, there is a custom to fit your need, even to a set of circumstances where the Bride and Groom announce their own wedding. These are just a scattering of the rules which Custom has established for you to follow and just about every possible question which you could ask, is answered at Hudson's. It is old Hudson's custom to help Brides-to-be with their Wedding Plans. We suggest that you come in real soon and we will help you to get off to the right start. From your engraved invitations to your Reception Napkins from exquisite Ring-sets to Gifts for your attendants from distinctive Sterling to your Crystal Service. All this and much more await you at Hudson Jewelers Wedding Headquarters in Granite City.

Pianist, Trumpeter, Orchestra, Audience and Weather in Harmony as 1972 Festival Opens

It was inspiring to be present Saturday evening as the Mississippi River Festival began the 1972 summer concert season, its fourth year. Even the weather lived up to the occasion after threatening earlier.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, currently concluding its 92nd annual season, was in fine form for its challenging assignment. The 99-member orchestra group responded well to the active leadership of Music Director and Conductor Walter Susskind and meshed adeptly with the piano virtuosity of Andre Watts on Chopin's "Concerto No. 2, Opus 21." The orchestra's selections were Smetana's overture to "The Bartered Bride," Stravinsky's "Circus Polka and Teahouk'sky's "Symphony No. 4, Opus 36."

The orchestra again performed well last night on Bernstein's overture to "Candide," Copland's "Danzon Cubano" and Gershwin's "An American in Paris" as well as teaming spiritedly with trumpet soloist Doc Severinsen on such selections as Lovelock's "Concerto for Trumpet and Orchestra," Lecuona's "Malagueña" and Werle's arrangement of popular compositions, "Rhapsody for Now," which included the Beatles' moving "Hey Jude." The large turnout included a great many Quad-Citians.

Much more later will be added to the River Festival stage at SIU-SW during the coming weeks in July and August, but a high level of musical competence and enthusiastic public acceptance already has been set, thanks to the highly enjoyable opening weekend.

Continuing Lack of Gymnasium at SIU-SW Prompts Resignation by Athletic Director

The resignation of Harry J. Gallatin as athletic director of the Southwest campus of Southern Illinois University on Friday focuses attention on the continuing lack of gymnasium facilities at the local university. He and others have become, in his words, "extremely impatient with the lack of response and resultant funding by the state."

SIU-SW Cougar athletes and teams have won regional, national and world acclaim for their prowess despite the fact that the local sports program did not begin until 1967, and on only a club basis.

Among the particularly outstanding SIU-SW sports are soccer, baseball, wrestling and golf. The Cougars also have competed skillfully in basketball, cross-country running and track and field events.

Few would contend that a gymnasium is the key element of an institution of higher learning. But it is an ingredient that cannot forever be omitted unless the state is committed to treating SIU-SW as a step-child, with a different standard than that applied to other universities in Illinois.

Walker 'Delighted' to Meet with Groups To Cut Through State Government Red Tape

We commented in the last issue that the Quad-Cities at present lack an effective voice at Springfield, that there has been frequent state-level opposition to local improvement proposals.

This comment came to mind Friday when we received the text of a letter to Dan Walker, Democratic nominee for governor, written by Mayor Herbert Schumann of Trenton, chairman of Concerned Citizens for Route 50.

"Our group has been trying for 15 years to get state government moving on this project. Our purpose is to relieve the dangerous situation on highway 50, a narrow two-lane road which is unable to safely handle the present traffic volume. Traffic accidents have increased dramatically."

"In the 1968 campaign, Governor Ogilvie promised a new four-lane highway, but since then, we have received nothing but delay. In the spring of this year, William Cellini, state director of transportation, promised us that an answer on the funding of the project would be forthcoming within 30 days."

"We waited 30 days—and then we waited an additional 30 days, but we heard nothing from Mr. Cellini, and many of our calls and letters went unanswered."

"Then, last Thursday (June 29), an article appeared in a local paper, saying that you were going to meet with our group on Saturday in Springfield—and surprise! What do you think happened? That evening, as if by magic, the Ogilvie administration suddenly awoke to the need for action regarding highway 50."

"Mr. Cellini finally talked to the governor about the problem. And on Friday, he came down here to announce that construction would begin in October on three bridges for the U.S. 50 expressway, and that advertising for bids for the highway would start then also. Thankfully, it looks like we are going to get a highway."

"It's pretty clear what happened. You got us action on the project, even though you're not the governor of Illinois. By just responding to our concern about a dangerous highway problem, you got those people in Springfield to finally wake up."

"Thank you for your help. And if you don't mind, I'll recommend the principle to the people of Clinton County. If they have a problem, Call Dan Walker. It's the best way to get the ball rolling in Springfield."

After receiving the mayor's letter, Candidate Walker said, "I would be delighted to meet with other groups in the state who are having trouble getting action from the Ogilvie administration. If we can cut through the Ogilvie bureaucracy to help people, I am all for it."

Politics of course, pervade such an episode but it poses an intriguing question: Ought somebody invite Mr. Walker to meet with citizens on some of the worst roads in the state, and repaving Highway 203 and building a convention-civic center at SIU-SW?

Figures cannot lie, especially in current beach creations.

Naval hospital. Separated from members of his family, who died in Kingston, N. Y., Livingston died in 1778.

John Hart—The British burned the gristmills and took possession of the lands of the successful New Jersey farmer. As the British approached, and the pleadings of friends, he left the bedside of his sick wife.

After months of living in woods and caves, Hunter man, he returned after the British retreat to find his wife dead and his 13 children scattered. He died soon after.

Carter Braxton—A wealthy Virginia planter, Braxton at first hoped a compromise would avoid revolution. After casting his lot with the rebels, he saw his ships and cargoes swept from the seas by the British Navy and mortgaged his property to pay his debts. He died penniless in 1797.

Thomas Nelson Jr.—Born to Virginia's landed gentry, Nelson became an ardent rebel, commander of the state's army and then governor. When Cornwallis' army used his personal mansion as a headquarters, Nelson ordered it fired upon by the cannons. He used his fortune to finance the war, and died bankrupt.

Of the 56 signers who pledged "to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor," 17 indeed lost their fortunes; five were captured and imprisoned; nine lost their lives. But none lost his honor.

The Illinois State Bar Association also points out that the legal holiday celebrated on July 4th each year has a historic significance that is little known to most Americans.

In addition to being the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence from England, the Fourth of July also is the anniversary of the deaths of two men who signed the Declaration and played leading roles in its formulation and adoption.

Revised Child Care Act Still Slight Role of the Family

Copley News Service

The Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee tried mightily to make a salable commodity of the Child Development Act, which Congress passed last year and which went down under the veto of President Nixon.

It reduced the initial cost and scope of the program. It provided that state governments could be given a hand in what otherwise loomed as a hopeless task of administering a program creating 2,000 "child care centers" in towns and cities.

The Senate has bought the new bill and sent it to the House.

It is still regarded by many people as a bad bill, however, and it is doubtful if the House can do any further repair work in the 79 pages of social engineering which would justify its acceptance by the President.

This may be a classic example of how the federal government can get away when it presumes it can deal with every problem afflicting American society.

There is no question that the bill is aimed at a genuine problem.

Children are caught in the middle when a mother in a low-income family is under pressure to accept a job, and to do so must turn pre-school children over to an untrained baby-sitter because her salary would not be large enough to justify the expense of sending the child to a well-staffed nursery school.

The government would not be providing for "care" of children under this program but for their "development."

Its centers would provide "educational, nutritional, health and other services" and the diagnosis and treatment of "physical, mental psychological and emotional barriers to full participation in programs."

The cost per child of this bundle of services is estimated at $2,72 per year.

To save a child from parental neglect might well be worth that investment.

But there is no guarantee attached to this program—or that Congress possibly be—that the commitment of a child to such all-encompassing "development" under federal auspices would save it from anything.

Indeed, it is sobering to consider what kind of children these centers might produce.

The breakdown of the family, as the source of moral discipline and character formation is a root cause of the problem of adolescent misbehavior in our society.

If we are ever to correct those problems, we must strengthen the family unit, not weaken it as this program so obviously would do, it is being contended.

When he refused to sign the original Child Development Act last December, Mr. Nixon declared that the problem of providing more adequate care for pre-school children of working mothers can only be solved by "measured, evolutionary, painstakingly considered" program that recognizes the need to preserve the position of the family as "the keystone of our civilization."

The Senate bill, jumping into American family life with both federal feet, could be a long way off target.

Exciting Reading for 'All Who Care About Future Freedom'

I LED THREE LIVES; by Herbert A. Philbrick; Capitol Hill Press; 306 pages; $7.95.

Reviewed by FRANK MACOMBER

Copley News Service

It has been 20 years since Herb Philbrick wrote this story. Yet, two decades later, his tale of how communism operates in the United States is as fresh and significant as it was then.

All the publishers had to do was update the names of a few agencies and inject a new foreword by Efram Zimbalist Jr., star of a television series about the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Philbrick spent nine perilous years living part of the time as an American citizen, part as a Communist agent and another third as a U.S. counterespionage writer.

Other writers have attempted to duplicate the impact of his story about life inside the American Communist Party but have come up short.

Ironically, some of Philbrick's descriptions of the Communist network's operations in the 1940s still are true today. His story is all the more amazing because he was cast in the role of a counterespionage agent when a Boston area youth organization at Philbrick turned out to be controlled by Communists.

Philbrick told the FBI and was encouraged to play along. He did so with skill and daring and eventually rose to the rank of important American Communist echelon—all the time keeping the FBI posted about what the party was up to.

The book is such a first-rate adventure story that it was adapted easily into a long-run TV series.

More important, however, is its contribution as a true, unvarnished report on the American Communist Party in action.

Zimbalist's foreword characterizes "I Led Three Lives" as "important, not only for exciting reading, but as a source of reference material for the serious student of Communism, and for all Americans who care about the future of freedom in our country and throughout the world."

BURGLARY LOSS SEVERE FOR NEW, SMALL STORE

To the Editor:

An open letter to the thieves who burglarized Bob Scatturo's store (Bob's TV, Seventh Street and Madison Avenue, Madison).

It's a crying shame when a man is trying to earn a decent living and thieves in the night come to take it away from him.

The burglary took place at the television shop on Saturday, July 1, between 2:30 and 4 a.m.

Many, many long hours have gone into this recent venture. This included doing his remodeling, waiting on customers, repairing TVs, and getting his merchandise on consignment.

Bob was hospitalized a few months ago, and recently his wife, Donna, had her third baby. The middle child, Mike, just turned two, has to use braces on his legs, and every six weeks his shoes have to be changed and new ones bought, which makes doctor bills galore.

Aren't the burglars proud? Doesn't it make them feel good to take away from this little boy?

While Bob had his business place insured, it does not cover theft.

To those who removed the window from the window to gain entrance, they really ought to feel real proud of the crime they have committed.

The loss consists of several color TVs, several hi-fi stereos, and radios, air-conditioning units plus many tapes; this amounted to a loss of $5,800 and more.

This is quite a loss to a young family man with a wife and three children to feed, clothe and doctor.

Not only is this a vile crime by hoodlums, but even more vile are those who will buy this stolen merchandise and gleat over the fact that they have bought something for peanuts.

His family may have to do without the necessities needed while the hoodlums have money for liquor, dope, etc. Of course, when the burglars run out of money for their needs, they will go on to rob again.

Perhaps they are reading this item and in time will even kill for a few cents. To you, hoodlums, this should make you feel real proud of yourselves.

I doubt that you have any conscience.

Just remember that ill gotten gains in the end do no good, because someday all have to pay for it.

I would like to add that it is a Christian duty for anyone who is any American citizen to sign this burglary to come forward and report it to the proper authorities. God will Bless you for it.

To withhold this information would make someone as guilty as those who committed the actual crime.

I am not a vengeful person but I am sure that God above will let anyone profit from this sin.

I am also sure that your mothers, just as I am Bob's mother, will bear an extra burden as a result.

State Status—Assembly Votes Corrections Code

By RAY SERATI

Copley News Service

Springfield—If it is signed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, Illinois will have a new code of corrections.

A new code has been approved by the General Assembly. The approval climaxes a long wait and a great deal of work by state officials connected with the corrections field.

The legislators also put in much time on the proposal. Hearings and meetings were held throughout the state.

Basically, what the code does is to try to draw together all of Illinois' corrections laws, which are now scattered through several sections of the state statutes. It also attempts to modernize Illinois' correction system.

The proposed new code is massive in size. Because of this it will take some time for it to be digested and put into terms for laymen. It also will be some time before the real meaning can be determined and explained in the press.

Felonies are placed into categories, thus allowing the judges some sentencing latitude. However, the latitude in the sentencing process is not as wide as under present laws.

Under the existing system, judges had a great deal of latitude in the sentencing process because they were always given a minimum and a maximum.

Under the new code, providing it is signed by Gov. Ogilvie, the sentence will be by the category and not by the type of crime committed.

The proposed state code follows the federal system at least in one area. It would allow or require a pre-sentence investigation in felony cases. Judges also would be allowed to double the minimum and maximum penalties if the crime was committed with the use of force.

The proposed code also touches on the work-release program now under study in Illinois on a somewhat limited basis.

Supporters of the proposed code in the General Assembly said it is designed to cut back on the number of "repeaters." Correction officials are hopeful it will do just that.

July a Time for Americans to Look Back Through History and to Future

The month of July and the observance of Independence Day have prompted the Illinois State Bar Association to do a bit of looking backward and forward.

The look back into the past goes as far as the year 1776, the year when the bicentennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence will be celebrated.

Not surprisingly, the Bar Association's interest includes a law, Illinois has provided one relating to the nation's 200th birthday.

A Chicago World's Fair of 1976 has been proposed to mark the 200th anniversary of the Declaration—the nation's "birth certificate"—which was adopted by the Second Continental Congress meeting in Philadelphia on July 4, 1776.

According to the State Bar, a commission has been authorized by Illinois statute to work cooperatively with civic groups and others interested in planning a 200th U.S. birthday event in Chicago.

One purpose, the ISBA notes, would be to pay tribute to the bravery and sacrifices of the Declaration's signers, who became targets of British reprisal.

"Many of the Declaration's signers," the ISBA observes, "were men of means who—in pledging themselves to the cause of freedom—did so knowing that their properties and businesses would be confiscated, their homes ransacked and destroyed and their families endangered."

Discussing the 196th anniversary of the signing, observed last week, the ISBA has prepared the following brief chronicle of the suffering endured by some of the signers, none of whom ever recanted his oath or forsook the cause:

Francis Lewis—A Long Island, N. Y. shipper and importer, Lewis was one of the first to feel the British wrath. His country estate was looted and his papers were burned; his wife was imprisoned and became fatally ill.

Philip Livingston—A successful New York merchant, Livingston's business was seized along with his two mansion homes, one of which was converted into a British barracks and the other into a Naval hospital. Separated from members of his family, who died in Kingston, N. Y., Livingston died in 1778.

John Hart—The British burned the gristmills and took possession of the lands of the successful New Jersey farmer. As the British approached, and the pleadings of friends, he left the bedside of his sick wife.

After months of living in woods and caves, Hunter man, he returned after the British retreat to find his wife dead and his 13 children scattered. He died soon after.

Garden Centers Seminar at GC Library

As part of a program to establish seven garden centers at various locations in Illinois, a "Garden Centers Seminar" will take place at 10 a.m. Thursday in the Mini-Garden Information Center at the Granite City Public Library.

Representatives from area garden clubs and related organizations in the Southern Illinois region are expected to attend. The symposium will be sponsored by the Gardenaires Club of Granite City.

Guest speaker at the morning session will be Mrs. Byrne A. Jackson of Villa Park, garden centers state chairman for the Garden Club of Illinois, Inc., who will discuss the requirements necessary for establishing garden centers.

Illinois currently has only three recognized centers — at Niles and Oak Brook in the Chicago area and at the Granite City Library.

Both Chicago centers are located in Sears-Roebuck stores which underwrite the cost of maintaining the centers, according to Mrs. Earl T. Glenn of Granite City, state environmental improvement chairman and Gardenaires officer.

Horticulture Display

The local Mini-Garden Information Center is financed and maintained solely through the efforts of the Gardenaires Club. The current display at the Granite City center focuses on horticulture. A fine selection of reference material on horticulture available for circulation is displayed, Mrs. Glenn said.

Additionally, as a special community service, the Gardenaires are distributing, without charge, a total of 2,500 jonquil bulbs at the present time, the state officer said. The bulbs, packaged in lots of about a dozen per container, are available free of charge to individuals visiting the library center.

Established for All

Mrs. Glenn noted that garden centers are set up to serve the school child and the public in general, as well as garden club members. In its stated policy, the National Council of State Garden Clubs advocates that garden centers concentrate upon service to the community; projection of civic beauty; advance the art of gardening; aid in establishing horticulture centers and expand the usefulness of a library of related books into a garden, a horticultural service to the entire community.

The local garden center was established in March 1970 and received official recognition from the Garden Club of Illinois, Inc. in December of the same year.

All facets of the national organization's objectives are covered here, Mrs. Glenn pointed out.

They encompass flower shows, roadside beautification, environmental improvement, conservation of natural resources, birds, garden therapy, landscape design, anti-litter campaigns, world gardening, junior and senior high school gardening and general horticulture.

Seminar Speaker

The guest speaker is president of the Kenwood Garden Club and a member of the Garden Club of Downers Grove. Mrs. Jackson serves as garden chairman for the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen and is a student flower show judge.

She is a life member of the Garden Club of Illinois, Inc., and a member of the state body's Illinois Judges Council. She also holds membership in the Garden Center of Greater Cleveland; American, Massachusetts and Chicago Horticultural societies; International Geranium Society; American Forestry Association; National Parks and Conservation Association; the American and Chicago Regional Rose societies; and the Chicago Zoological Society.

Mrs. Jackson also is a national charter member of the Smithsonian Associates and a life member of the Field Museum and Art Institute of Chicago.

Luncheon at Church

The seminar will take place from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Thursday at the library, with guests adjourning to Niedringhaus United Methodist Church for a luncheon at noon.

The group will return to the library during the afternoon for an informal gathering to further explore aspects of the garden center program, Mrs. Glenn said.

Several guests, including Gardenaires' members, will be entertained Thursday evening at a fish and frog fry at the Glenn residence.

On Friday, many of those who attended the seminar will join forces for a tour of the DeMeni-House, a restored landmark in St. Louis, and a visit to the National Council of State Garden Clubs headquarters, located at 4401 Magnolia St., St. Louis, near Shaw's Garden.

Special guests expected to attend the affair include Mrs. B. J. Isselhardt, District V director, Edwardsville; Mrs. Stephen P. Shea, state Blue Star Memorial Highway chairman, Belleville; Mrs. Lucile MacLeod, a trustee of the Granite City Public Library, who has been named a director of the Lewis and Clark Regional Library System, serving a six-county area; and Wayne Siefert, ornamental horticulture specialist with the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service.

The public is invited to hear the guest speaker, Mrs. Glenn said.

SYMPOSIUM SPEAKER. Mrs. Byrne A. Jackson of Villa Park, Garden Centers state chairman for the Garden Club of Illinois, Inc., who will address a gathering of garden club representatives from the Southern region at 10 a.m. Thursday at Granite City Public Library. The symposium will be sponsored by the local Gardenaires Club.

ETA CHAPTER REVIEWS SORORITY CONVENTION

The July business meeting of the Eta chapter of Phi Tau Omega sorority was held Wednesday evening at the Elks Club. Twelve members were in attendance and Mrs. Mary Lou Richeson, chapter president, presided.

A report was given on the recent annual convention. Mrs. Margaret Yackel accepted the chapter office of historian again for the coming sorority year, due to the resignation of a newly-elected officer.

It was announced that the installation of chapter officers will be held July 18 at Noah's Ark, St. Charles, Mo.

Prizes for the evening were won by Miss Dolores Sheridan and Mrs. Lois Hodge.

Training Program In Metals Set for Winter at Campus

A metal technology management training program will begin this winter under the terms of an agreement between the American Foundrymen's Society (AFS) and the Business Division of Southern Illinois University-Southwestern.

The program is under the direction of David J. Werner. Also involved in the development of the program are Donald Fogarty and Thomas E. Johnson all of the management science faculty. The AFS is represented by Frank Foley.

The purpose of the program, which will consist of 16 three-hour sessions beginning in January, 1973, is "to familiarize personnel with the fundamental techniques of modern metal processing and fabrication techniques used in the planning and control of production," according to Marshall Burak, associate dean of the Business Division.

The American Foundrymen's Society was organized in 1896 to foster "the advancement of the sciences related to the manufacture and utilization of metal castings through research, education and dissemination of technology," in the words of the organization's charter.

The AFS is guaranteeing the required program enrollment of 20 students at a tuition fee of $175 per participant.

The chairman of the St. Louis area chapter of AFS, James G. Richeson, said "we feel this is an ideal way to provide proper training and education of middle management people" in the field of metal technology.

Among the areas to be covered in the program are foundry technology, metallurgy and its implications, rolling and forging, and the machining of metals.

Two Masters Programs Approved For SIU-SW

Two new masters degree programs at Southern Illinois University-Southwestern were approved Thursday by the Illinois Board of Higher Education. Action was deferred on three other SIU-SW graduate degree proposals.

Approval was given for a master of science degree in nursing and a master of music degree with a concentration in performance. Both had previously been approved by the SIU Board of Trustees.

The master of science in nursing degree will prepare individuals as expert practitioners of clinical nursing and as nurse specialists with a high level of clinical competence directed toward maintaining the patient's health.

The degree program will also prepare specialists capable of directing and guiding others who engage in patient care and in teaching and management. The BHE has recommended special funding for the development and initiation of this program. Lucille McClelland, dean of the nursing division, said instruction will begin in the fall.

The master of music degree with a concentration in performance is designed for individuals planning to pursue professional careers in music. Graduate degree in music have been offered previously, but this is the first graduate degree in music with an emphasis on performance to be offered at SIU-SW. Instruction will begin in the fall.

Action was deferred on proposals for a master of arts and master of science in anthropology, a master of science in urban studies and a master of science in environmental studies.

Deferral was recommended by the BHE staff, although it indicated all programs "fall clearly within the scope and mission of Southern Illinois University-Southwestern."

The board staff said initiation of the new programs in urban and environmental studies will require additional resources and that the availability of new funds will not be known until late fall. The staff said the environmental studies proposal should be examined in a statewide study which is under way.

Campus Given $81,368 For Special Ed Clinic

A grant of $81,368 has been awarded to Southern Illinois University-Southwestern in support of the Special Education Microteaching Clinic. The grant is from the Bureau for the Handicapped in the U. E. Office of Education.

Richard N. Jensen is the project director for the grant, which will terminate in June, 1973. He said the grant will be used to produce new lessons to be used in the clinic for the training of special education teachers.

The student training sessions are recorded on videotape and played back for the student by the instructors with comments for improvement, he said. The grant will also enable SIU-SW students to travel to surrounding schools for training sessions with children with emotional and learning disorders, Jensen said.

Jensen is an assistant professor of special education.

As part of a master plan for environmental education now being developed, the staff said the anthropology proposals should await further study of graduate programs in the social and behavioral sciences at SIU-SW.

Accelerated, Revised Crime Fight Being Urged as Needed To Avoid Undermining of the Basis of American Society

Widespread interest and controversy has begun developing following issuance of anti-crime proposals by a subcommittee of the Committee for Economic Development.

To curb the nation's mounting crime toll the Research and Policy Committee of the Committee for Economic Development (CED) issued a mid-summer call for a complete overhaul of the criminal justice system at the federal, state and local levels.

The panel of national business leaders urged establishment of an independent Federal Authority To Ensure Justice, which would coordinate a nationwide fight against crime and provide generous financial support for properly reorganized state and local systems.

In a key recommendation, the nonpartisan group called on each state to create a strong, centralized department of justice to take over all criminal justice activities now performed by thousands of state and local agencies.

Under the CED proposal, unified state-wide judicial systems would be established to operate all except the federal courts, while county and other local governments would be relieved of all obligations except maintenance of police forces and pre-trial detention.

In an 86-page statement, "Reducing Crime and Assuring Justice," the Committee also set forth specific proposals for state and local action to revise the criminal codes and to improve the effectiveness of the police, correctional agencies, the courts and both prosecution and defense counsel.

Included were recommendations that:

1. "Major criminal sanctions should be imposed against private possession of handguns, which account for over half of all murders and almost all killings of police officers. The federal and state governments should be the sole owners of such weapons and should issue them on a temporary basis to authorized persons under carefully drawn regulations.

2. "Police should be better trained, better managed, and brought into closer harmony with the citizenry. The police departments should be restructured to place much greater emphasis on the suppression of serious offenses, narcotics abuse and organized crime.

3. "Correctional systems should be funded at substantially higher levels and should adopt more imaginative approaches to reverse what the Committee believes is a debacle of misproprietous in the nation's misguided and underfunded correctional efforts.

4. "Private, unorganized gambling should be legalized, and extensive experimentation should be undertaken with government operation of gambling arrangements. The Committee emphasizes that these measures would deal a major blow to organized crime by depriving it of its main source of income.

5. "States should eliminate criminal penalties for the use of marijuana, which the Committee concludes is non-addictive and of doubtful danger, and establish commissions to revise state criminal codes more completely in conformance with the present views of the American people concerning 'criminal conduct'.

The Committee called on the business community in particular to take an active role in improving the administration of justice—not only because crime costs the business community an estimated $16 billion a year but because it "undermines the very basis of American society."

The report asked businessmen to "clean their own houses" and aid in the prosecution of criminal offenders, whether employees, company officers, customers or elements of organized crime.

It urged business leaders to use their influence—both publicly and behind the scenes—in support of needed reforms in the criminal justice system.

"The CED statement was made public by Wayne M. Thompson, senior vice-president of Dayton Hudson Corp. and former city manager of Oakland, Calif. Thompson headed the panel that prepared the report.

In a foreword to the statement, Philip M. Kutznick, chairman of the Research and Policy Committee, underscored the Committee's view that "crime is not an alien, isolated phenomenon.

"Crime is deeply rooted in the social ills of our society," the Committee therefore renewed its call for adoption of CED's recommendations on welfare reform, education, training and jobs, and other social problems.

The statement focuses, however, on the administration of justice.

"The Committee believes that the ineffectiveness of the present structure is rooted in the organizational and administrative chaos that characterizes the nation's uncoordinated system of criminal justice, and in the management weaknesses prevailing in agencies at all levels," Kutznick pointed out. The report charges that states have "botched" their constitutional responsibility for crime prevention and control by turning the responsibility for enforcement over to a "welter of overlapping counties, municipalities, townships and special districts."

Despite the need for reform, the statement declared, "the states have neither straightened out their tangled and ineffective patterns of local government nor assumed direct responsibility for law enforcement," which is now handled by over 32,000 separate police forces.

To encourage needed reforms at the state level, the new Federal Authority To Ensure Justice would be authorized to contribute half of all and local costs for police, prosecution, judicial and correctional agencies meeting prescribed standards.

This proposal, the Committee said, would cost the federal government about $5 billion a year, but would be offset by lower state and local expenditures.

Thus, the CED plan constitutes one possible form of "revenue sharing," the report notes. Within broad statutory guidelines drawn by Congress, the Authority would serve as a center of national policy formulation on crime and justice.

It would be empowered to develop strategic plans and policies for improving the criminal justice system, evaluate performance of ongoing programs, and provide advisory services to state and local units.

It would formulate new legislation, propose amendments, necessary, financial educational programs to assure suitable training for law enforcement officers, and commission needed research.

There would be an annual report to the President and Congress—comparable with that of the Council of Economic Advisors—describing the national condition with regard to crime and justice and outlining policy directions as well as assuring the collection and analysis of pertinent data.

As a start, the Authority would be given jurisdiction over the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration—a Department of Justice agency established in 1968 to dispense grants for improvement of state and local law enforcement—which would serve as a nucleus for an expanded unit.

The Authority also would be given immediate jurisdiction over the Treasury Department's contemplated Consolidated Law Enforcement Training Center. Other federal agencies would remain in place pending intensive of their role and operation.

The new and independent federal agency would operate under a board appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation, with its chairman as chief executive officer.

To aid the Authority and the members of its board, the Committee recommended the establishment by statute of an Advisory Commission appointed by the President and consisting of outstanding citizens, including retired justices of the U. S. Supreme Court, judges of high state courts, members of Congress, governors and other persons of national esteem.

The Committee also called for the immediate appointment of enough special prosecutors to assure prompt elimination of heavy backlog and fulfillment of the constitutional guarantee of "speedy and public" trials.

On the question of the right to defense counsel, the Committee had this to say: "Those accused have the right to legal counsel—at public expense for indigents—from arrest through every stage of those proceedings.

"But that right will be fully effective only when the scarcity of qualified defense counsel is overcome through better compensation, judicial insistence and other determined efforts.

In contrast, the Committee found that police forces are not as badly undermanned or underfunded as other elements of the criminal justice system.

"Citizens have been slow to see that without adequate prosecution, speedy trials and suitable correctional measures the police cannot restrain crime successfully.

"Nor is it fully understood, in view of the variety and complexity of the work, that reorganization and better management are often as important to a modern force as additional policemen."

The Committee recommended consolidation of local-level police forces into strong statewide or regional units.

However, because even large forces commonly lack skilled management, the CED report underscored the need for strong, professional management of police departments to make optimal use of available manpower and specialized skills.

The statement called for the strengthening of patrol forces with minimum diversion to clerical and other internal support duties and to traffic and parking activities.

It also urged the establishment of educational programs to assure high professional and management skills for police cadets and officers.

The Committee placed great emphasis on improved police attitudes and conduct toward minority groups and the general public.

Discriminatory police conduct and use of excessive force, the Committee said, must not be tolerated and should be punishable by appropriate disciplinary action extending to dismissal, high standards should be set through recruitment policies, training, and performance evaluation.

The panel urged that criminal charges against police officers—as well as prison guards and other officers of the law—be prosecuted as such, and it recommended that private parties be enabled to bring such cases before the courts, as is the case in the United Kingdom.

The nation's correctional efforts suffer from an "appalling" degree of governmental apathy, the Committee declared.

"Correctional expenditures are less than one-third those for police protection, while the police are called on to arrest over and over persons whose patterns of conduct have been worsened, not bettered, by 'corrections,'" the report noted.

The Committee went on to say: "It is past time to give thoughtful reconsideration to the whole field of crime and punishment.

"The immediate necessity is to replace obsolete prisons, oppressively managed, with decent facilities where opportunities for education, training and personal development are available under the guidance of qualified and sensitive staffs.

"No prison should be designed for more than 500 inmates, nor should any be allowed to accept prisoners in excess of rated capacity...."

Although the cost of these changes may total well over $200 million in construction alone, the report emphasized that such expenditures "must be placed in proper perspective and compared with the costs borne by society because of the tens of thousands of hardened and embittered career criminals among the 100,000 to 150,000 released from American prisons each year. Cost effectiveness coincides with humanity in support of reform."

The statement underscored the crucial role of probationary and parole forces, who are responsible for four times as many people as are confined in prison.

The Probationary and parole systems, the Committee said, are "society's main resource in diverting offenders from confinement in criminal courses of conduct" and should be greatly expanded and strengthened.

The Committee also urged the business community to work closely with these forces in providing job opportunities and in other ways.

Home Notes

By Mrs. Catherine R. Mauck
Madison County Home Adviser
Home Economics Extension
University of Illinois

ISSUES "BUYERS' GUIDES"
To help you, "being taken in" by unorthodox sales persons and companies, the Federal Trade Commission Division of Consumer Education has issued a new "Buyers' Guides" on various subjects of general interest.

Dorothy Gloss, University of Illinois Extension home management specialist, says single copies of the Guides are available free by writing to Legal and Public Records Division, F.T.C., Washington, D.C. 20580.

There is a brief review of the topics covered in the Guides. (Guide No. 1) Points up facts that would be aware of when buying mail order insurance.

Six Area Couples Obtain Divorces

Six area couples have obtained divorce decrees in Madison County Circuit Court. Granted divorces were: Thelma K. Black of Madison from Robert L. Black of Granite City. They were married June 22, 1948, and separated in May 1971. Mental cruelty was charged. Custody of one child was given to the mother, and the father agreed to pay child support of $20 per week.

Rosjelle Davis from Joseph J. Davis. They were married May 19, 1967, in Marissa. Mental cruelty was charged. Custody of two children was given to the mother, and the father is to pay child support of $20 per week.

Evelyn Marie Carnett from Willie Augusta Carnett, both of Granite City. They were married Dec. 27, 1968, in East St. Louis, and separated last May 15. Mental cruelty was charged. Custody of one child was given to the mother. The matter of child support was reserved by the court.

Dale Hilt of Madison from Grace Hilt of Collinsville. They were married June 3, 1968, in Belleville, and separated Oct. 4, 1970. Desertion was charged. Hwacha Durbin from Edward Keith Durbin, both of Granite City. They were married July 2, 1965, in Seoul, Korea, and separated Oct. 15, 1970. Desertion was charged.

Donnay Faye Marshall from Larry D. Marshall. They were married Nov. 27, 1971, in Granite City, and separated last March 8. Mental cruelty was charged.

Malcolm Thompson to Retire After 33 Years With State Employment Service

By VALERIE EVENDEN
Press-Record Staff Writer

More major changes have occurred in the past five years in the concept of aiding those who work through the expansion of services than in the entire 33 years that Malcolm A. Thompson has been associated with the Illinois State Employment Service (ISES).

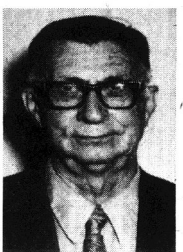

Thompson, manager of the state employment office in Granite City since December 1942, will retire from his position July 31. A successor has yet to be named.

During more than three decades of service he has seen the labor market fluctuate from both ends of the spectrum; observed changes in job categories and qualifications, due to improved technological knowledge; and has witnessed a remarkable upswing in the number of jobs available in technical fields.

Aid to Disadvantaged
The most drastic change in procedure is the concept of helping the disadvantaged to find work, rather than placing the best qualified individual in a specific job, the ISES officer said.

"We have concentrated a great deal of our attention on job-seekers who need training and education to get into the labor market," he explained. Since 1967 when programs and direction were geared to absorb more disadvantaged people into areas of employment, the staff has doubled at the local ISES office, 2050 Iowa St., Thompson noted.

In the past two years, another marked change in job placement services has come about with the implementation of a centralized Job Bank System in St. Louis, serving the metropolitan St. Louis region.

Twenty-five state employment offices are tied into the system which permits each office to receive a daily list of all recorded job openings in the immediate Illinois-Missouri area. Job specifics are listed on microfiche and each office terminus is equipped with a viewer, enabling personnel to quickly analyze the available job picture on a day-by-day basis, Thompson explained.

Results of testing programs, counseling, referrals for training and new registrations are computerized and recorded in the Chicago office which receives a complete record of all activities at local ISES offices.

Few Jobs Obsolete

Surprisingly few jobs in this area have become obsolete in recent years, although some individuals laid off permanently by firms, due to revised programs, have been retained in skills necessary to find different types of work, he said.

Counseling of applicants, especially those termed "disadvantaged," has been a big thing, Thompson noted. A close working relationship exists between the ISES and the Division of Unemployment Compensation, which is located in the same building in Granite City. The prospective retiree began employment in State Employment Service in December 1959 in Edwardsville. He remained there until September 1961 when he was transferred to the Granite City office, then located in a building at 21st Street and Madison Avenue, now the Tri Cor Building.

Relocated in 1961

The headquarters was changed to the "old bank" at N. Highways Avenue and Cleveland Boulevard, where it was housed until relocated at its present location on Madison Avenue in July 1961.

Between January 1942 and October 1946, the state employment office was absorbed into the War Manpower Commission, a federal government agency. It reverted to state control in October 1946.

Thompson was born in Hillsboro, Ill. His wife, Charlotte, retired this year as a teacher at Grigsby Junior High School. She also has taught at Nameoki School and Coolidge Junior High School.

Father of Six

The couple has six children including four sons. Dr. Donald Thompson is involved in experimental research psychology work at Georgetown University Medical School in Washington, D. C.

Hadley E. Thompson is a senior program analyst in the product testing and distribution division of Control Data Corp. in Sunnyvale, Calif. David Thompson is a teacher in the Madison School System, and their youngest child, Ralph, has completed his sophomore year at SIU-SW.

Their two daughters are Mrs. Albert (Kathryn) Barkasaus of Streamwood, Ill., and Mrs. Barbara Johnson of Ponton Beach, also a student at SIU-SW whose husband, Stephen, is assistant football coach at Collinsville High School.

The Thompsons live on a 2½-acre tract of land at 4700 Breckenridge Lane. The prospective retiree enjoys gardening and produces all manner of garden vegetables on his acreage. His retirement plans presently are focused on enjoying more time in the garden and travel.

Slavic Friends Annual Picnic Set Sunday

The Slavic and Eastern European Friends of Southern Illinois University-Southwestern will hold its 11th annual picnic from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday at Chambers Park, Highway 140, North St. Louis County.

The menu, available on the grounds, will include roast lamb, sausages and other Slavic foods. Refreshments will be served.

The Polka Toppers will provide music for dancing, and games will be played. Admission is free but $1 will be charged per car for off-highway parking.

The organization serves to preserve Slavic traditions and heritage. It has helped develop one of the largest Slavic collections at the Lovejoy Library at SIU-SW in the United States.

FACES TWO CHARGES

Walter Creek, 39, of 1730 State St., was arrested at 9:40 p.m. Thursday on intoxication and disorderly conduct charges. Police said he was knocking on doors and disturbing residents in the 2800 block of Edwards Street.

High Family Income in County, Stable Work Force, Residency

Average family income was $10,249 in Madison County in 1969, compared with $10,959 for the state, according to a new report on the 1970 census by the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce. Per capita income for the county amounted to $3,110, the report shows.

The 1970 census counted 260,934 residents in the county. 1.6% were foreign born and 6.6% native born with one or both parents of foreign birth. Among the county's 229,626 inhabitants age five and over in 1970, 13,738 were living in a different county within the state in 1965, and another 13,441 in a different state.

In the population aged 16 and over, 80% of the men and 39% of the women were in the labor force. Among the employed, 44% were holding "white collar" jobs and 15% were government workers.

About 38% of the married women with husband present were in the labor force, and 28% of these wives had children under six.

There were 74,375 persons three to 34 years old enrolled in schools. In the 25-and-older population, 48% of the men and 46% of the women were high school graduates.

Copies of the report, "General Social and Economic Characteristics, Illinois," PC (1)-15C, are available for $3.75 each from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402, or from U. S. Department of Commerce field offices in major cities.

Pontoon Man Indicted In Heatherly Cutting

Landon Ray Fisher, 4052 Lake Drive, Ponton Beach, was arrested Thursday by Madison County sheriff's deputies on charges of aggravated battery and attempted murder of Arthur Heatherly, 2147 Woodlawn Ave., last June 13.

Fisher had been indicted a week earlier by the Madison County Grand Jury but the indictment was suppressed as he was at liberty without charge. At a bond hearing Thursday, the court agreed to $15,000 recognizance bond on one charge and bond of $10,000 cash or $20,000 property on the other. Heatherly was found in a pool of blood on the living room floor of his home with his neck and throat cut with a knife.
